Many of my clients use parenting apps and are tempted by the free versions. However, they have commented to me that these apps are difficult to set up and give rise to more issues than they assist with. In situations where communication is already proving challenging, the free apps have served to sometimes cause further difficulties rather than alleviate them. One example, the parents were blaming each other for the ‘set up difficulties’ and as a result were not willing to use an app at all due to their initial extremely poor experience. In my view it is not only the ease of set up of OurFamilyWizard but also the ongoing support that is provided that puts it head and shoulders above free apps, but they just don’t compare in terms of ease of use, set up and features.
